EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING

Creating an authentic learning experience requires us to design a culture which consists of the elements of mythology, art, and ritual.

EXPERIENCE

The highest form of learning is learning from the senses and from the immersion in the environment

CULTURE

The experience of an idea is called the culture.

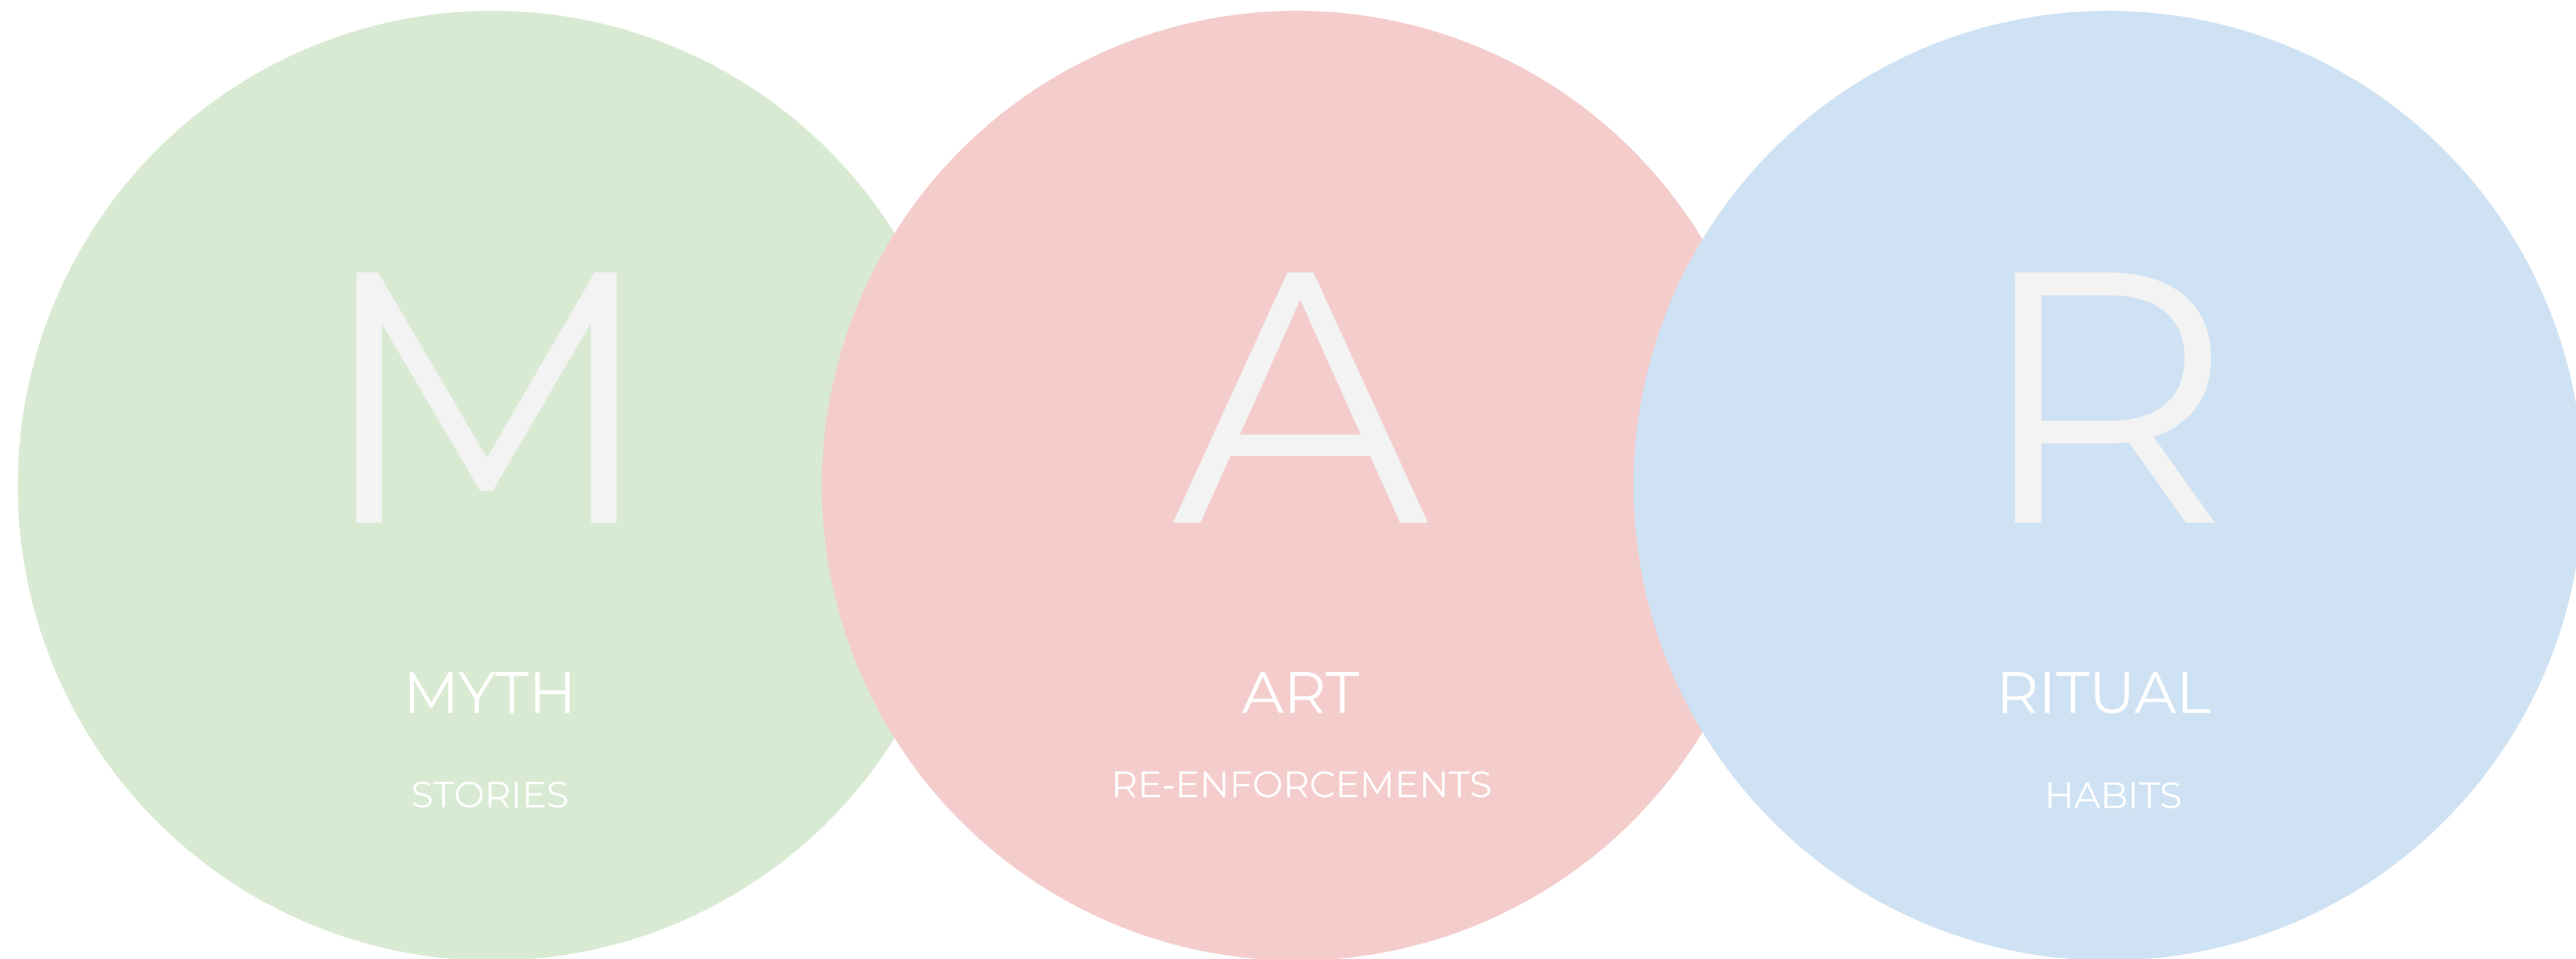

M*A*R

Culture consists of three components that can be experienced and participated in.

THE M*A*R METHOD

Turn any class into an experiential learning module with the help of The MAR method.

M O R E U T A B

M * A * R

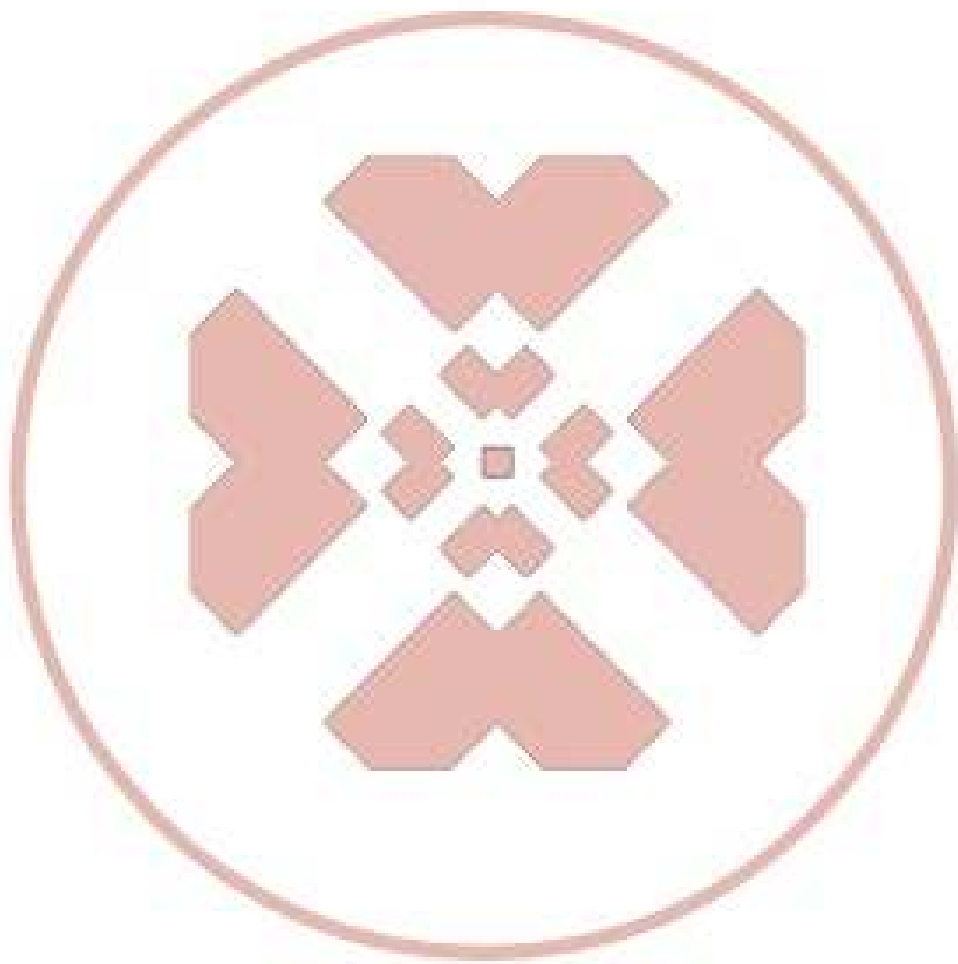

Since time immemorial, every successful community has been able to integrate three important elements to build strong culture -- story & myth, art & design, and habits & rituals. These allow its members to participate in the value system and stay close.

MYTH

Your story

A good mythology generates strong empathy. It makes its members take ownership of the journey.

ART

Your Reinforcement

Serves as a daily visceral reminder and reinforcement of what everyone is working towards.

RITUAL

Your Habits

Experience through design
Rituals allow you to bring your mythology to life for your people through participation in designed experiences.

CHILDRENS BOOK

MYTH

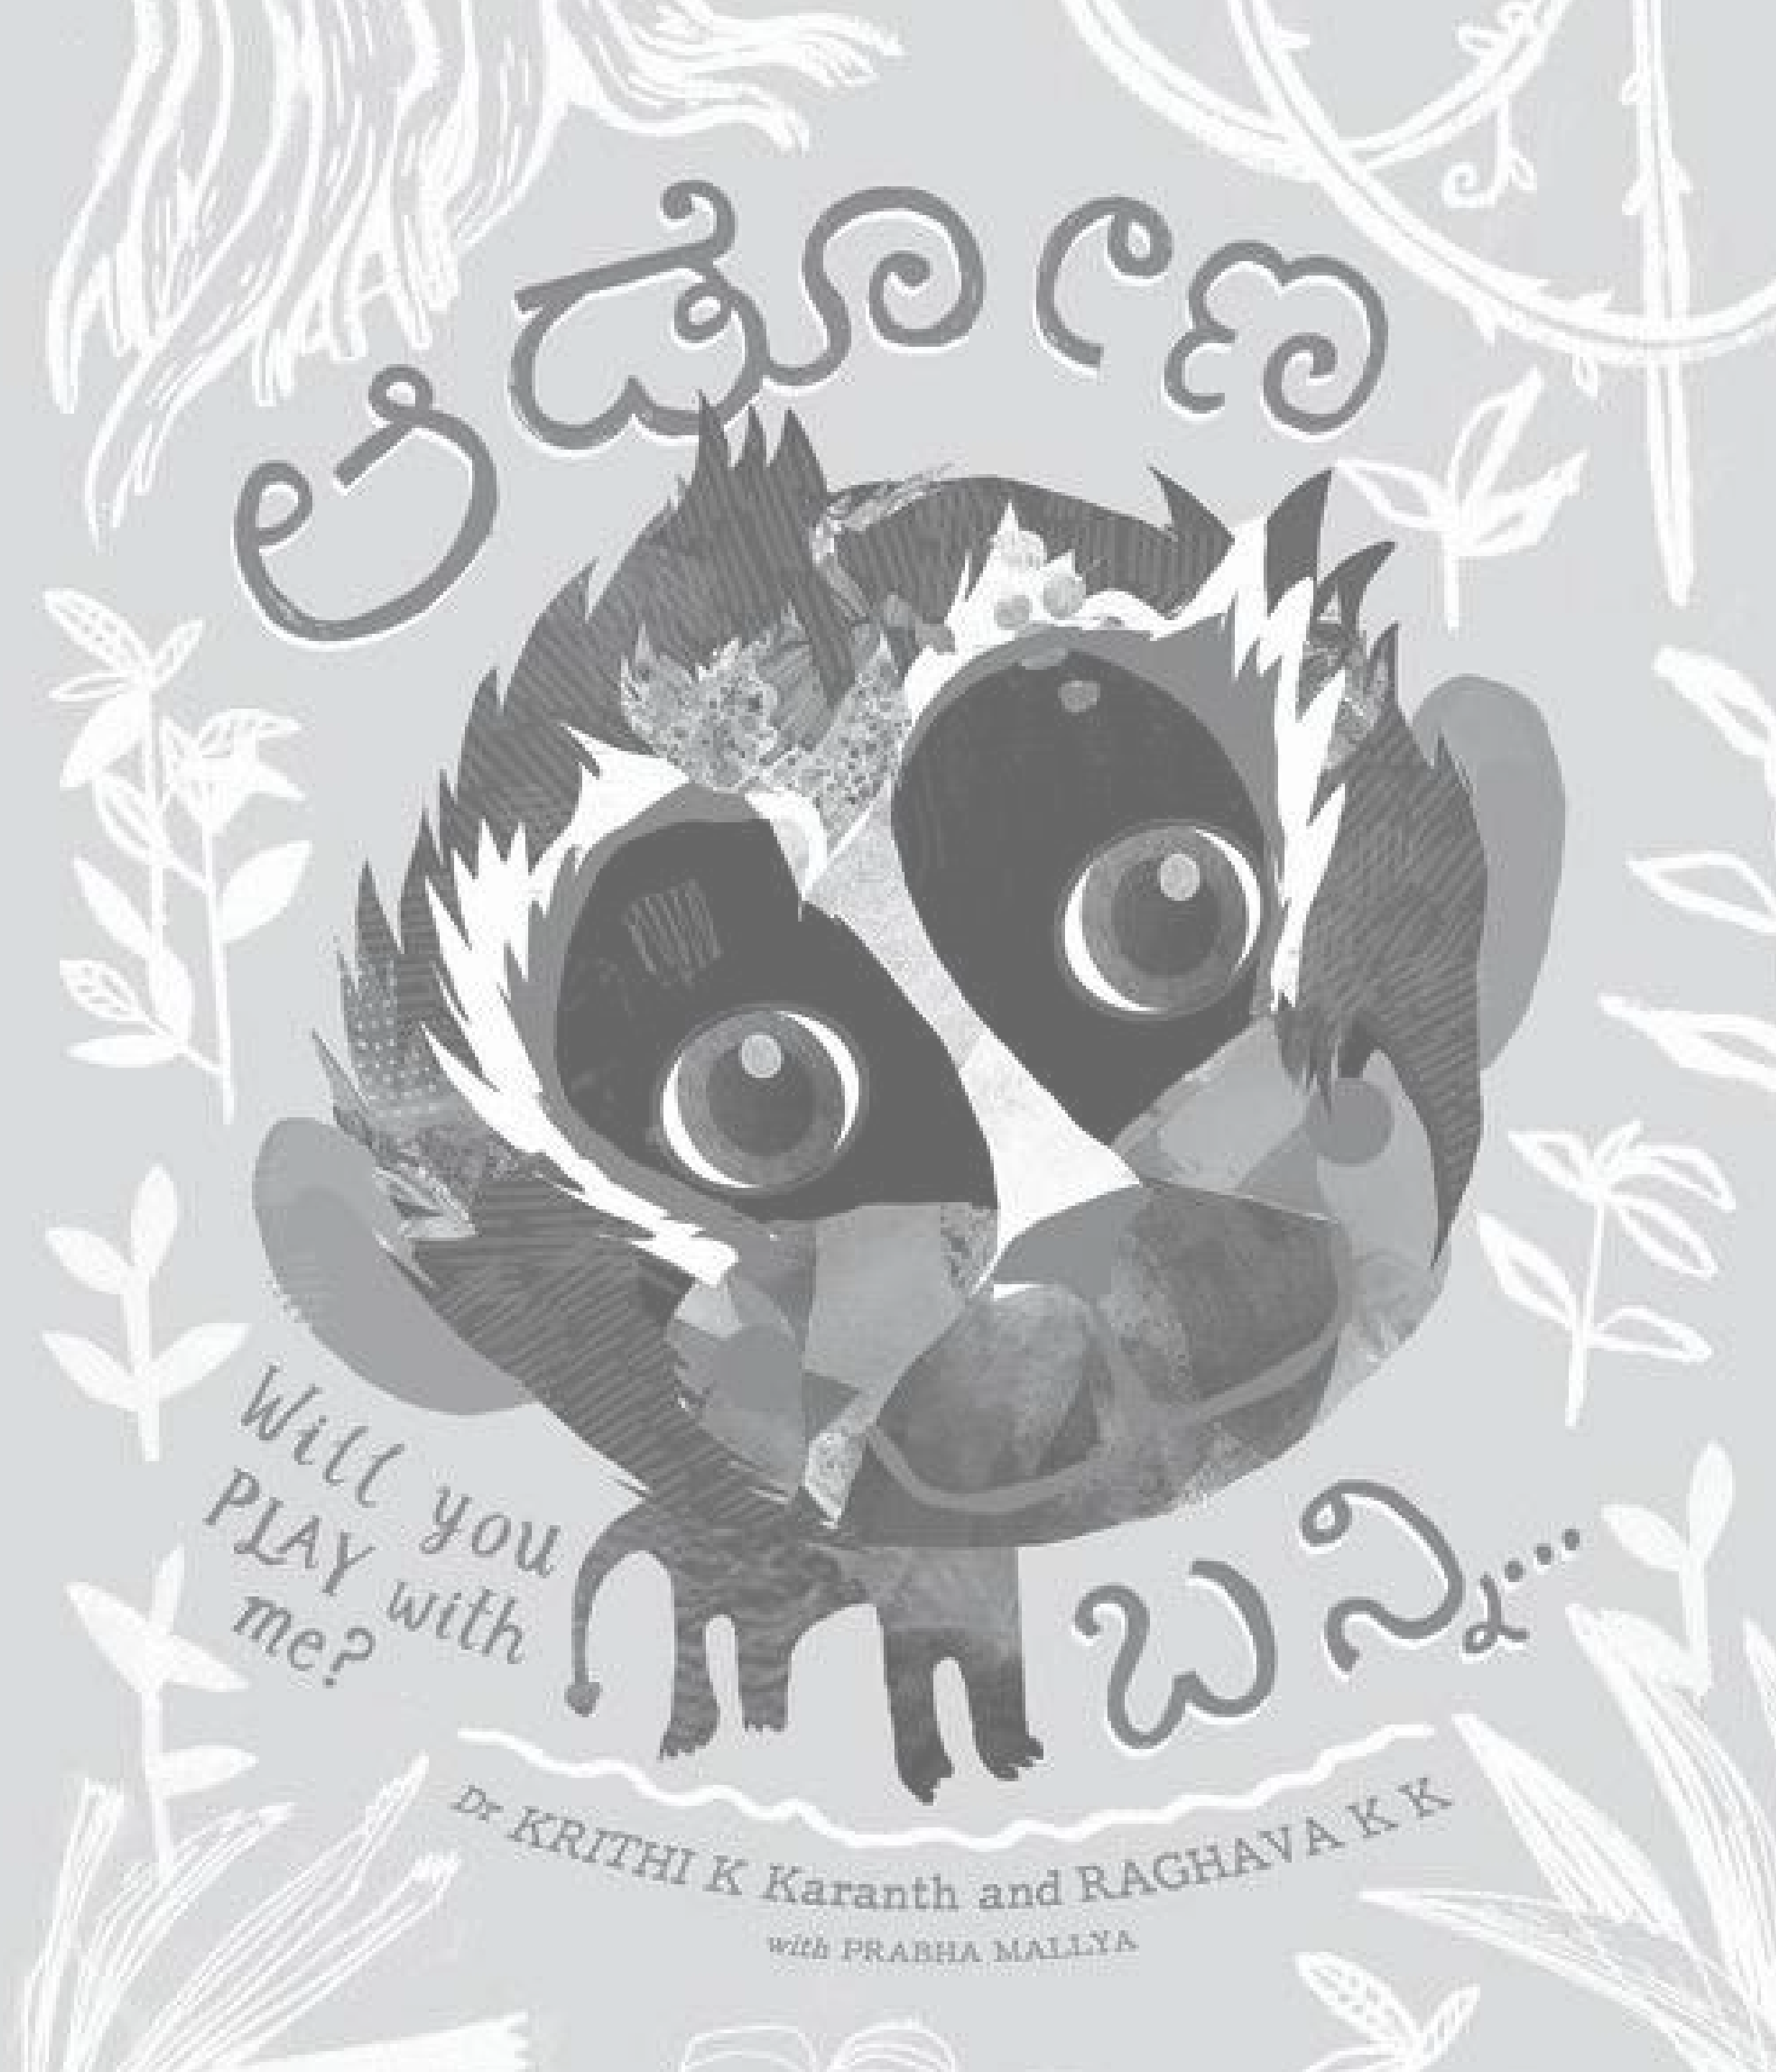

An animal you play with and think of as magical is one you will grow to care for and protect

ART

Masks in book - story changes when the masks are removed.

RITUAL

Take the masks out and symbolically you have the animals fate in your hands.
Make belief empathy play with the masks allow you to become the animal.

ANTHROPOMORPHISM

MYTH

The ultimate purpose of art is to make us feel alive

ART

Live painted dancers change the composition of painting mid air though performance. They camouflage when they are facing one direction and stand out when they turn around.

RITUAL

Animating the artwork through movement.

WHAT EDUCATORS HAVE TO SAY

“Our educators spent the next day talking about how their experience with you widened their perspective on what disruption in education could really look and feel like. [They] used the words “life-changing” and “eye-opening.””

STEPHANIE NG
TEDEd PROGRAM MANAGER

“You were officially the most popular speaker at our conference. Everyone has mentioned your name in their feedback.”
