Impossible Bouquet

Created by Raghava KK
2019 - 2020

The Impossible Bouquet Series is inspired by the Dutch tradition of still life where flowers are collected from different seasons to create an Impossible Bouquet. What I found fascinating about this tradition was that these flowers can never coexist, they belong to different seasons. However, in this particular arrangement they come together beautifully. Not very different from the condition of our minds, where we have impossible concepts that coexist to create our spirit and our sense of being.

For me, this is the condition of being Indian — an impossible democracy, an impossible bouquet. A space where seemingly conflicting entities like cartoons, memes, historical characters coexist, creating a harmonious impossible sense of beauty. I see everything as an integrated interactive storytelling experience.

Raghava KK has pioneered a groundbreaking body of diverse works that explore transcendence through the lens of the current digital era. Featured on CNN's list of ten fascinating thinkers, authors and provocateurs in 2010, Raghava's work traverses traditional forms of painting, installation and performance, while his practice embraces new media (artificial intelligence, neuro-feedback, biohacking, board and video games, crypto currencies etc), to express post-human contemporary realities.

His lectures, including 5 TED talks, are known for inspiring audiences to expand their social and psychological selves, using art. Netflix, this year launched an episode on Raghava in the Creative Indians Series.

Raghava's storytelling migrates among his various disciplines through 50 foot live paintings, interactive books sponsored by Apple (Pop-it, won a Kirkus book award that year), Album designs for Erykah Badu and Paul Simon, as creator in residence at Viacom, NY, Raghava launched Must# at both TED and Viacom HQ, A Visual Empathy Algorithm that learned how the viewer made meaning visually and pushed him to transcend the limits of his taste.

Raghava has mentored several creative entrepreneurs by infusing his philosophy into their processes and products. In 2010, Raghava co-founded and chaired The INK Fellowship (The TED of India), India's leading global multidisciplinary fellowship program. Raghava was inducted into the National Geographic Society in 2013 as an Explorer, for pushing the boundaries of scientific exploration through art. In 2015, He created a new compositional process, part human and part algorithm-driven through his collaborative project SOZO - a painting machine, developed for him by Artmatr at the MIT Media lab.

In 2017, Raghava was invited by Jeff Bezos to conduct an art workshop for leading creative minds from around the world. The same year, as a partner, he helped set up the vision and strategy for Roundglass, India's largest venture fund for wellbeing.

In 2018, Raghava co-founded 64/1, an art collective dedicated to blurring the lines between art, art criticism and art education.

In 2020, Raghava created Eye Candy - a performance art piece on Instagram (with Under25 studios) in an attempt to reach out to a completely different audience, than the usual audience for high art, through a completely different art form that combines monologue, painting and self-help.

Currently, Raghava is the co-founder of Canvas, an ambitious open sourced, virtual platform for creators. He currently lives and works out of Bangalore, India.
